

Position	Postdoctoral Training in Comparative Pathology- 2008
Organization/Company	Columbia University
Location	New York ,NY

Institute of Comparative Medicine
Post Doctoral Training in Comparative Pathology, Starting 2008

The Columbia University, College of Physicians and Surgeons, Institute of Comparative Medicine, has an immediate opening for a three-year Postdoctoral training/Anatomic Pathology Residency Program for veterinarians. This program provides outstanding anatomic pathology training and prepares the resident to fulfill the requirements for certification by the American College of Veterinary Pathology (ACVP). Residents gain practical and diverse experience in anatomic pathology through gross and microscopic examination of pathology cases from the Columbia University. The program also provides opportunities for research collaborations with numerous researchers in College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University Dental School, Herbert Irving Cancer Research Center and Mailman School of Public Health.

Qualifications: Candidates must have a DVM or equivalent degree, and have graduated from an AVMA accredited institution and a license to practice veterinary medicine in at least one state of the US.

Columbia University offers a competitive package, including a family health program, 4 weeks vacation, and partially subsidized housing.

To apply, interested individuals should submit a letter of application, which should describe your professional background, interests and goals, your clinical experience and preparation, and your plan for developing as a professional, curriculum vitae, and the names, addresses and telephone numbers of 3 professional references to:
