

From the Columbia University Medical Center web page:

Understanding Radiation-Induced Secondary Cancers

July 22, 2011

- Ionizing radiation damages neighboring cells.
- In a small percentage of cases, radiation treatment can cause secondary tumors.
- Researchers are working on ways to prevent such tumors

Link to Article:

<http://www.cumc.columbia.edu/news/understanding-radiation-induced-secondary-cancers>